Distribution conditions

Any regulated person who engages in retail product distribution conduct, other than excluded conduct (such as the provision of personal advice), must comply with the following distribution conditions for the product.

Distribution conditions: Personal advice	Distribution conditions do not apply with respect to the provision of personal advice or to arranging for a consumer to apply for, or acquire, the product for the purpose of implementing personal advice. This is because regulated persons who provide personal advice have statutory and general law duties with respect to the provision of personal advice which apply instead of the distribution conditions. This product is not to be distributed through personal advice.
Distribution conditions: General advice – online	The following distribution conditions apply to any retail product distribution conduct, other than excluded conduct (such as the provision of personal advice), which occurs through an online channel: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The distributor of the online channel must be approved by TAL Life. • The online channel must obtain information required to determine whether the consumer is eligible for the product and must not permit a consumer to be issued the product if the consumer does not meet the eligibility criteria (provided that the consumer has provided all relevant information honestly and completely). • The online channel must draw the consumer’s attention to the key features of the product, including an estimate of the applicable premium, based on the consumer’s requested product benefits, to enable the consumer to determine if the product is likely to be consistent with their objectives, financial situation and needs. • The online channel must make available a PDS of the product to consumers. • If the online channel is licenced, used or white labelled via a distributor who makes accessible the online channel to consumers, that distributor must also be approved by TAL Life.
Appropriateness of the distribution conditions: General advice – online	The distribution conditions will result in the product being issued to consumers who are likely to be in the target market because: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the requirement for the online channel to determine whether a consumer is eligible for the product and not permit consumers to be issued the product if they do not satisfy the eligibility criteria means the product cannot be issued to consumers who are not eligible for the product. • the requirement for the online channel to display information on the key features of the product, including an estimate of the applicable premium based on the consumer’s requested product benefits, is likely to prompt a consumer to either proceed or not to proceed with an application based on their financial capacity to afford the applicable premiums and determination of whether the product is consistent with their likely objectives, financial situation and needs.
Distribution conditions: General advice – call centre	The following distribution conditions apply to any retail product distribution conduct, other than excluded conduct (such as the provision of personal advice), which occurs through a call centre channel: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The distributor of the call centre channel must be approved by TAL Life. • The call centre channel must have in place processes in relation to call scripts, training, monitoring and quality assurance designed to ensure the appropriate distribution of the product. • The call centre channel must obtain information required to determine whether the consumer is eligible for the product and must not permit a consumer to be issued the product if the consumer does not meet the eligibility criteria (provided that the consumer has provided all relevant information honestly and completely). • The call centre channel must draw the consumer’s attention to the key features of the product, including an estimate of the applicable premium based on the consumer’s requested product benefits, to enable the consumer to determine if the product is likely to be consistent with their objectives, financial situation and needs. • The call centre channel must make available a PDS of the product to consumers.

Distribution conditions

Appropriateness of the distribution conditions: General advice – call centre	The distribution conditions will result in the product being issued to consumers who are likely to be in the target market because: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the requirement for the call centre channel to determine whether a consumer is eligible for the product and not permit consumers to be issued the product if they do not satisfy the eligibility criteria means the product cannot be issued to consumers who are not eligible for the product. the requirement for the call centre channel to provide information on the key features of the product including an estimate of the applicable premium based on the consumer's requested product benefits, is likely to prompt a consumer to either proceed or not to proceed with an application based on their financial capacity to afford the applicable premiums and determination of whether the product is consistent with their likely objectives, financial situation and needs.
